Reported by: Andrea Dessoify
Saturday, Apr 19, 2008 @05:36pm EST

Aftershocks are still shaking up the Wabash Valley Saturday after earthquake in 20 years hit Friday.

The U.S. Geological Survey reported a magnitude 2.7 earthquake Saturday morning.

The tremor was centered in Bellmont, Illinois, located in Wabash

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Indiana Wireless Enhanced 911 who's also the state's treasurer, says the 911 network successfully handled Friday's quake.

Richard Mourdock says the IN-911 system successfully handled wireless phone calls within 10 minutes.

The network usually handles about 600 calls a day.

The IN-911 network routes all wireless emergency 911 calls to a safety answering point, which then notifies local emergency services.
